

Diane Peck, MPH, RDN

Alaska Department of Health and Social Services

Excellence in Practice 2021

Diane's hard work to promote fruit and vegetable consumption and healthy life/obesity prevention has impacted Alaska and the nation. Her passion, knowledge and skills made the Alaska Obesity Prevention and Control Program, and other partnerships, possible.

Jennifer Dellaport, MPH, RD

Colorado Department of Public Health & Environment

Excellence in Association Work 2021

Jennifer has been active on the ASPHN Board of Directors and on committees. No matter what size project she handles, her work shows her knowledge, her effort, and makes her an example of a top class public health nutrition leader.

Diane Golzynski, PhD, RD

Michigan Department of Education

Excellence in Advocacy 2021

Diane's effort and advocacy during the pandemic allowed Michigan to get P-EBT benefits in place before any other state. She is honored for her tireless effort to reduce food insecurity and facilitate access to the program at all levels.

Robin Stanton, MA, RDN, LD

Oregon Public Health Division

Excellence in Advocacy 2021

Robin has a long history of policy leadership and subject matter expertise, working on national and state policy initiatives for breastfeeding, food insecurity, obesity prevention and more. Throughout her career, Robin has contributed to policies that have benefitted MCH populations.

Jamie Stang, PhD, MPH, RDN

University of Minnesota School of Public Health

Outstanding Leadership for the MCH Nutrition Council 2021

As a leading national expert on MCH nutrition, Jamie provides rich experiences for emerging and more experienced MCH Nutrition professionals. This year marks her 10th year as a member of the MCH Nutrition Council's Steering Committee.

Chris Mornick, MPH, RDN

Washington State Department of Health

*Outstanding Leadership for the National Fruit & Vegetable
Nutrition Council 2021*

Chris has used her excellent leadership skills throughout ASPHN in several programs and committees, and currently leads Washington State's FIG program team. Her work continues to make Washington's Farm to ECE program sustainable.

Carole Garner, MPH, RD, LD

Outstanding Leadership for the Healthy Food, Active Communities Council 2021

Carole is the Council's leader for all nutrition-related policies. She is retired but committed to keeping her colleagues informed of relevant events and information. Carole's work history reflects over 30 years of dedication to the nutrition field and continues now.

Student Poster Winners

Evaluating Self-Efficacy of the Remote Provision of Local Food Access and Assistance Resources (FAAR) Training Program for Community and Public Health Nutritionists

Julianne Evans

The Influence of Sociocultural Factors on Fast Food Consumption Among Latinx Immigrants in South Florida

Christie Kirchoff

