

Share your student voice

ASPHN Student Committee and Council Members

Why is your student voice requested?

As a student member, you're invited to share your voice on ASPHN committees and councils. Your perspective is important. In addition, by participating in committees and councils, you get to learn practical skills and leadership expertise from current leaders.

Who can become a student committee and/or council member?

All students who are members of ASPHN can participate.

What would you do?

There are different levels of involvement and your academic career comes first. Your level of involvement depends on you. When you join a committee or council, you are considered a full member. You have the right to:

- Attend meetings and special events
- Receive correspondence
- Take an active role on the committee

What does an active role look like?

You can be an active participant by:

- Listening to the meeting
- Joining in discussions and asking questions
- Serving on subcommittees
- Helping complete literature reviews
- Taking minutes
- Drafting newsletter articles
- Providing information for a post on social media
- Assisting in developing and writing action plans, policy statements, and briefs
- Volunteering for other tasks

What is your next step?

Review the committee and council options on the ASPHN website to decide where you fit! Then, reach out to the chair by using the contact information listed.

- Policy Committee
- Collaboration Committee
- Membership, Communication, and Outreach Committee
- Maternal and Child Health (MCH) Council
- National Fruit and Vegetable Nutrition Council
- Health Food, Active Communities Council

Remember: Each committee and council member is important. You have specific knowledge that is valuable for the group. ASPHN wants you to share your ideas and utilize our organization as a leadership tool.
